VXi Corporation Selected for Membership in Avaya DevConnect Program

Network of Companies Creates Innovative, IP-Enabled Unified Communications Applications That Extend the Value of Multivendor Networks

For Immediate Release: 22-Jul-2010

DOVER, N.H. - VXi Corporation, a leading provider of best-in-class telephone headset solutions, today announced it has been selected by Avaya Inc., a leading global provider of business communications applications, systems and services, for membership in the Avaya DevConnect program.

VXi Corporation manufactures corded and wireless headset solutions for contact centers, offices, speech recognition users and mobile professionals. VXi headsets are designed for comfort and durability in the work place and meet the highest global standards for reliability, durability and overall product quality. Using advanced noise-canceling technologies and superior quality audio receivers, VXi headsets enable clear, consistent and dependable voice communications for enterprise business users. As a result, companies can become more productive and efficient in the work place.

The Avaya DevConnect program promotes the development, compliance-testing and co-marketing of innovative third-party products that are compatible with standards-based Avaya solutions. Member organizations have expertise in a broad range of technologies - including IP telephony, contact centers and mobility applications - helping companies extend the value of multivendor networks and transform voice into an intelligent business application that delivers true value to the bottom line.

"Membership in Avaya's developer community will allow us to serve Avaya customers more efficiently and effectively while helping VXi build our growing unified communications business," said Michael Ferguson, President and CEO of VXi Corporation. "By working closely with Avaya to deliver compliance-tested voice solutions to the market, we are able to provide unique UC solutions for companies who demand superior call quality, helping to enhance the image of the corporation through natural sounding conversations that make telecommunications more effective and help keep users productive all day long."

The Avaya DevConnect program currently includes thousands of software and hardware developer companies, integrators, service providers and customers. Members have created a broad array of innovative solutions tested for Avaya compliance, including natural language speech recognition applications, wireless services, specialized computer telephony integration and reporting capabilities, and applications tailored for specific vertical industries.

Through the DevConnect program, Avaya provides a number of platforms and interfaces for member companies to develop with and enhance. "Development partners like VXi Corporation are helping Avaya dramatically expand the options available to our customers," said Eric Rossman, vice president, Developer Relations, Avaya. "We're able to provide the tools businesses need to change the way they work and to establish a true competitive advantage in the marketplace. VXi's membership in the DevConnect program will benefit Avaya customers as they deploy UC throughout the enterprise, as well as those customers who have already done so."

As a member of the DevConnect program, companies have access to a wide range of support from Avaya, including technical resources and training. There are three levels of membership - Registered, Gold and Platinum - each entailing progressive levels of marketing and sales involvement. Free Registered membership is available to anyone interested in designing Avaya-compatible solutions. Gold-level members and Platinum members must meet rigorous Avaya criteria for customer satisfaction, product support, business operations, marketing and sales. VXi Corporation is a Gold-level member of the Avaya DevConnect program.

Membership information and a listing of solutions developed and tested under the DevConnect program are available at www.avaya.com/devconnect.
